

Sean Devine – Manifesto

Being an ex-Exeter City player, now retired from the game, and now living back in Exeter from a 10 year stint in New Zealand, Exeter was the only place I was going to return to, after playing here for nearly 3 years where I built up an affinity with the Club, Trust and fans.

As an ex-player and with a club that I respect and admire, I would like to help develop opportunities – like the Club producing its own strip with its own trademark or Trust logo.

Progression with the Junior Grecians getting kids more involved with being part of the Club with real focus on attendance with younger supporters and supporting ECFC's focus on the community.

Being a Trust-run club we need bring through the next generation of Trust members.

Adding unrelated non-footballing opportunities, utilising Trust money to improve the whole financial picture, working alongside the fans of the Club, listening to their ideas for business development.

Carrying out football comparisons with other club's infrastructure, to understand where we could improve, adapt or copy.

I believe in evolution and development to achieve progression.
